KIBLER & KIRCH:

A CELEBRATION OF NATURE & CRAFT

For Jeremiah Young, owner and creative director of Kibler & Kirch, the best holiday décor tells a story about place and purpose. “Timelessness and a sense of place are important to all of our interiors,” he says.

Natural, organic materials continue to dominate this year’s trends, featuring elements such as evergreen branches, pinecones, feathers, and warm wood accents. “Fresh greens engage the senses and remind us instantly of Christmas,” Jeremiah explains. “Stuff your tree with extra greens, magnolia, blue spruce, and pine, to add variety and luxury.”

Lighting also matters: “Use warm yellow lights. You’ll sit in that room in the evening, and you want a soft, cozy glow.”

For added character, Jeremiah suggests mixing textures, such as linen ribbon, brass bells, handblown ornaments, and even antlers. “Hang the largest ornaments first, then fill in the gaps with smaller ones. Let light pass through them, it animates everything.”

And don’t forget the wrapping. “Beautifully wrapped presents are décor,” he says. “Start early and choose papers and ribbons that match your tree. It’s both practical and festive.”

“WE LOVE AUTHENTIC,
HANDCRAFTED PIECES
THAT CONNECT TO MONTANA AND BECOME CHERISHED HEIRLOOMS
OVER TIME.”
